

HB 1732 -- Self-Administered Medications by Students

Sponsor: Fraser

Currently, the self-administration of an asthma medication inhaler by students is permissible under certain conditions. This bill revises the law by broadening permissible self-administered medications to include auto-injectible epinephrine for anaphylactic shock. The bill specifies the necessary conditions for self-administration including a written treatment plan, proof that a student has demonstrated the skill required, and a signed liability release for the school.
