FISCAL ANALYSIS

ASSUMPTION

§311.202 – Liquor sales

Officials from the Department of Public Safety – Division of Alcohol and Tobacco Control (ATC) state new §311.202 allows the holder of a retail by drink license to sell retailer-packaged alcohol to consumers as long as: the intoxicating liquor is in a rigid, durable, leak-proof, sealable container; the contents of the container doesn't exceed 128 ounces; the consumer orders a meal with the alcohol; the alcohol purchase does not exceed twice the number of meal servings; a dated receipt or electronic record is provided to the consumer for the meal and alcohol purchase, and the sealed container is placed in a one-time use tamperproof bag or the container is separately sealed with tamperproof tape. The container must also have a label that states "THIS BEVERAGE CONTAINS ALCOHOL" and it must be filled in compliance with Section 3-304.17(c) of the 2009 Food and Drug Administration Food Code. Wholesalers and manufacturers are not allowed to furnish these containers to retailers.

Currently, ATC has 15 agent positions that are responsible for 16,200 primary licenses or 1 agent per 1,080 licenses. It will be extremely difficult for ATC to regulate this change, in addition to the agent's current responsibilities, and ensure compliance and a safe environment with the current agent to license ratio. ATC is asking for four (4) special agents, one (1) for each district office, to allow the division to better regulate and enforce this new section.

The National Liquor Law Enforcement Association (NLLEA) did a survey last year of agent to liquor license ratio. Of 18 states that participated, the average agent to license ratio was 1:581. Even with 4 additional agents, ATC's agent to license ratio would be 1:852, which is well over that average.

During 2020, alcohol sales have shifted from on premise to off-premise sales (Nielsen). There seems to be a stronger association between off-premise alcohol sales and an increased rate of violence, assaults, child abuse, alcohol-attributed hospital admissions and impaired driving (Science Direct). Increased off-premise alcohol sales also seems to have an association with increased youth access to alcohol. Compliance checks were conducted in several states as a result of complaints received regarding youth accessing alcohol through curbside services and home delivery. The compliance checks showed a high rate of non-compliance with alcohol being sold to minors (Washington Post). This bill allows alcohol to be purchased with a meal to be consumed off of the licensed premises. Many of these transactions take place through curbside pickup or home delivery, which will increase the ability for minors to access alcohol if the proper age verification isn't conducted. In order for ATC to properly enforce alcohol sale to minor laws, the division will need additional agents to do so.

Oversight notes the ATC currently has 15 agent positions available to enforce violations that result from alcohol compliance checks. This legislation does not change the licensing requirements or compliance checks. Therefore, Oversight assumes the ATC can absorb the provisions from this proposal with existing personnel and resources. However, if additional duties require increased staffing, the ATC may request additional funding through the appropriations process.
