Associated Industries of Missouri supports the Research and Development Credit in SB 931 and also the inclusion of the State and Local Tax (SALT) Parity language. The R&D Credit has been designed to make sure smaller companies have a chance to receive the credit, encourages businesses to use research services of our colleges and universities, and is capped at $10m, $300K per taxpayer. We suggest clarifying what is meant by "strategic industries" in the prohibition against companies having business with Russia.

At their meeting in March, the board of the St. Charles Regional Chamber voted to include support for R&D Tax Credits in their list of policy positions. This is something that had not been on our radar until recently. We join Greater St. Louis, Inc., and other Chambers and businesses throughout the state in recognizing the impact this tax credit has previously had on our state and, if passed, how it could impact investment and growth in Missouri in the future. I will not go into the details of the bill as I am sure you are all aware, but the reforms included in this bill can enhance Missouri's competitiveness in attracting entrepreneurs, resulting in new businesses and job creation, while spurring research growth by existing businesses. We believe that the concerns of a few large businesses consuming the credits before other smaller businesses can take advantage of the benefit has been address in this bill. Six of the eight states that border Missouri have already enacted state-level R&D Tax Credits. We MUST invest in Research & Development. Don't allow Missouri to be last, once again. On behalf of the St. Charles Regional Chamber, I encourage you to support future job growth and investment in Missouri and support this Bill 931.
