This Bill and Intent makes sense on its face. I do have questions about "Non-Appportioned Vehicles" and Interstate Transportation Vehicles having Special Plates that do not comply with United States Department of Transportation and Regulatory Regulations. Be cautious on this Bill.

I strongly oppose the Department of Revenue issuing "Back the Blue" license plates to Missouri motorists. This would establish clear bias in the police departments and lead to cases of blatant discrimination. Are motorists without the "Back the Blue" license plates assumed to be anti-police? Will they be targeted by police departments, or perhaps motorists with "Back the Blue" license plates will be allowed by police officers to commit driving offenses or get away with DUIs without being stopped. These practices are already taking place in MO, as evidenced by the former police chief of Hazelwood, MO who was allowed to be driven home without charge or arrest after being stopped clearly intoxicated by O'Fallon MO officers. Such "pro-police" sentiments can already be made clear with bumper stickers or other decals and adding such to official license plates will only lead to State-sponsored profiling.
