It seems wise to me in a time of unprecedented technological capabilities to establish safeguards for individual liberty. This proposal accords well with the fourth amendment and is a much needed clarification due to the increased nature of surveillance in the 21st century.

I fully support this bill in it's original form. The use of reverse searches, geo-netting, geo-fencing, and large scope cell phone ping data for the purpose of determining who was possibly at any particular political protest/rally, religious assembly, or such, is dangerous due to the fact that it's inevitable that innocent citizens will be caught in such broad sweeping net. There will likely be too many false positives. Such tactics instantly make any group of citizens (whose identities are unknown prior to such tactics being used) suspects and guilty until proven innocent. Nobody should be subject to scrutiny simply because their cell phone pinged within any specified radius of any particular event or gathering. The tactics this bill seeks to restrict, are tactics that will place scrutiny and guilt on unknown citizens simply because of association and being at the right/wrong place at the wrong time. Such tactics have already been weaponized for political persecution.

The Missouri State Troopers Association opposes the bill in its original form. We have been working with the sponsor to come up with compromise language. In its current form, we are concerned that this language could prohibit law enforcement in their use of technology to identify and arrest dangerous criminals. Limiting the use of cellular GPS being transmitted in public places could hinder law enforcement's ability to track missing and endangered children as well as those that have committed dangerous felony crimes.

Andy Arnold, registered lobbyist for the Kansas City Board of Police Commissioners and the Kansas City Police Department entering testimony in opposition to HB 762. First, I apologize for not being able to appear in person as I have a conflicting meeting at noon on Feb. 13. As written, the bill restricts the KCPD's ability to use certain investigative techniques to locate criminals or prove a crime. Thank you for the opportunity to register my testimony in opposition to HB 762.

I am in opposition to this bill. It will make it harder for law enforcement and prosecutors to do their jobs. This bill seems to be in direct conflict with what the majority party claims is the problem in Missouri, specifically Kansas City and St. Louis - crime rates and the performance of St. Louis' Circuit Attorney.
