AMEND House Committee Substitute for Senate Substitute for Senate Committee Substitute for Senate Bill No. 71, Page 43, Section 484.125, Line 17, by inserting after all of the said section and line the following:  "490.750. 1. This section shall be known and may be cited as the "Restoring Artistic Protection Act of 2025".  2. As used in this section, the term "creative or artistic expression" means the expression or application of creativity or imagination in the production or arrangement of forms, sounds, words, movements, or symbols, including music, dance, performance art, visual art, poetry, literature, film, and other such objects or media.  3. Except as provided under subsection 4 of this section, evidence of a defendant's creative or artistic expression, whether original or derivative, is not admissible against such defendant in a criminal case.  4. A court may admit evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing conducted in camera if the state proves by clear and convincing evidence:  (1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.	House	Amendment NO
Senate Bill No. 71, Page 43, Section 484.125, Line 17, by inserting after all of the said section and line the following:  "490.750. 1. This section shall be known and may be cited as the "Restoring Artistic Protection Act of 2025".  2. As used in this section, the term "creative or artistic expression" means the expression or application of creativity or imagination in the production or arrangement of forms, sounds, words, movements, or symbols, including music, dance, performance art, visual art, poetry, literature, film, and other such objects or media.  3. Except as provided under subsection 4 of this section, evidence of a defendant's creative or artistic expression, whether original or derivative, is not admissible against such defendant in a criminal case.  4. A court may admit evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing conducted in camera if the state proves by clear and convincing evidence:  (1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and		Offered By
Protection Act of 2025".  2. As used in this section, the term "creative or artistic expression" means the expression or application of creativity or imagination in the production or arrangement of forms, sounds, words, movements, or symbols, including music, dance, performance art, visual art, poetry, literature, film, and other such objects or media.  3. Except as provided under subsection 4 of this section, evidence of a defendant's creative or artistic expression, whether original or derivative, is not admissible against such defendant in a criminal case.  4. A court may admit evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing conducted in camera if the state proves by clear and convincing evidence:  (1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	Senate Bill No. 71, Page 43, S
2. As used in this section, the term "creative or artistic expression" means the expression or application of creativity or imagination in the production or arrangement of forms, sounds, words, movements, or symbols, including music, dance, performance art, visual art, poetry, literature, film, and other such objects or media.  3. Except as provided under subsection 4 of this section, evidence of a defendant's creative or artistic expression, whether original or derivative, is not admissible against such defendant in a criminal case.  4. A court may admit evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing conducted in camera if the state proves by clear and convincing evidence:  (1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	"490.750. 1. This sec	tion shall be known and may be cited as the "Restoring Artistic application of creativity or imagination in the production or arrangement of forms, sounds, words, movements, or symbols, including music, dance, performance art, visual art, poetry, literature, film, and other such objects or media.  3. Except as provided under subsection 4 of this section, evidence of a defendant's creative or artistic expression, whether original or derivative, is not admissible against such defendant in a criminal case.  4. A court may admit evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing conducted in camera if the state proves by clear and convincing evidence:  (1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and  (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	Protection Act of 2025".
movements, or symbols, including music, dance, performance art, visual art, poetry, literature, film, and other such objects or media.  3. Except as provided under subsection 4 of this section, evidence of a defendant's creative or artistic expression, whether original or derivative, is not admissible against such defendant in a criminal case.  4. A court may admit evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing conducted in camera if the state proves by clear and convincing evidence:  (1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	2. As used in this sect	ion, the term "creative or artistic expression" means the expression or and other such objects or media.  3. Except as provided under subsection 4 of this section, evidence of a defendant's creative or artistic expression, whether original or derivative, is not admissible against such defendant in a criminal case.  4. A court may admit evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing conducted in camera if the state proves by clear and convincing evidence:  (1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and  (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the furty to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	application of creativity or im	agination in the production or arrangement of forms, sounds, words,
3. Except as provided under subsection 4 of this section, evidence of a defendant's creative or artistic expression, whether original or derivative, is not admissible against such defendant in a criminal case.  4. A court may admit evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing conducted in camera if the state proves by clear and convincing evidence:  (1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and  (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	movements, or symbols, inclu	ding music, dance, performance art, visual art, poetry, literature, film, a rartistic expression, whether original or derivative, is not admissible against such defendant in a criminal case.  4. A court may admit evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing conducted in camera if the state proves by clear and convincing evidence:  (1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and  (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	and other such objects or med	ia.
4. A court may admit evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing conducted in camera if the state proves by clear and convincing evidence:  (1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and  (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	3. Except as provided	under subsection 4 of this section, evidence of a defendant's creative
4. A court may admit evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing conducted in camera if the state proves by clear and convincing evidence:  (1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and  (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the curry to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	or artistic expression, whether	original or derivative, is not admissible against such defendant in a
(1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and  (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the ury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	eriminal case.
(1) (a) If the expression is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than a figurative or fictional meaning; or  (b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and  (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible exidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the ury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	4. A court may admit	evidence described in subsection 3 of this section in a hearing
(b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and  (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the furty to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	conducted in camera if the sta	te proves by clear and convincing evidence:
(b) If the expression is derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of the expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and  (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the tury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	(1) (a) If the expressi	on is original, that the defendant intended a literal meaning rather than he expression as the defendant's own thought or statement;  (2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;  (3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and  (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the ecord and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the eary to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	figurative or fictional meani	ng; or
<ul> <li>(2) That the creative expression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;</li> <li>(3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and</li> <li>(4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.</li> <li>5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.</li> <li>6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:</li> <li>(1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the dury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and</li> </ul>	(b) If the expression i	s derivative, that the defendant intended to adopt the literal meaning of
(3) That the expression is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and (4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the tury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	the expression as the defendar	it's own thought or statement;
(4) That the expression has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible evidence.  5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	(2) That the creative of	xpression refers to the specific facts of the crime alleged;
5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	(3) That the expression	n is relevant to an issue of fact that is disputed; and
5. In any hearing under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the record and shall include its findings of fact essential to its ruling.  6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the fury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	(4) That the expression	n has distinct probative value not provided by other admissible
6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	evidence.
6. If the court admits any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the exception under subsection 4 of this section, the court shall:  (1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	5. In any hearing und	er subsection 4 of this section, the court shall make its ruling on the
(1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	record and shall include its fir	dings of fact essential to its ruling.
(1) Ensure that the expression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	6. If the court admits	any evidence described under subsection 3 of this section under the jury to that which is specifically excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and	exception under subsection 4	of this section, the court shall:
	(1) Ensure that the ex	pression is redacted in a manner to limit the evidence presented to the
(2) Provide appropriate limiting instructions to the jury."; and	jury to that which is specifica	ly excepted under subsection 4 of this section; and
	(2) Provide appropria	e limiting instructions to the jury."; and
Action Taken Date	Action Taken	Date

- Further amend said bill by amending the title, enacting clause, and intersectional references accordingly.
- 1 2 3