The Freedom Principle strongly supports HB 433, which establishes the Constitutional Money Act and officially recognizes gold and silver as legal tender for all personal and state-related transactions. In a global economy, Missourians need to be able to return to a safe and tangible currency. Additionally, this bill would exempt gold and silver from sales and capital gains taxes treating these precious metals as currency instead of commodities. Establishing gold and silver as a currency will protect and provide Missourians with financial security in a time of global economic turmoil.

Dear Honorable Members of the Government Efficiency Committee, Please pass HB 630 out of committee with the encouragement that it be passed by the House. We are already suffering serious inflation caused by the Federal Reserve creating money out of thin air, lending it to the government with interest, and the result of the extra fiat money makes the money we had before the influx, worth less and so it takes more of that fiat money to conduct commerce.

I support this bill. Since America's money is no longer backed by gold (President Nixon ended the gold standard in 1971 and moved us to the petroleum dollar) our paper bills are not worth much. Many people have invested in gold and silver coins to prepare for the collapse of the dollar bill. Therefore, they should be allowed to use the coins as just payment for goods and services, and not pay capital gains taxes on the increased value of those coins. This is also important at the state level, where the gold and silver can increase in price while the American dollar devalues. It's a smart bill and should be approved by all representatives.

My name is Jake Jackson, I am 25 years old and I'm a resident of Saint Charles County. First, I'd like to give special recognition to Patrick Holland, who has been a grassroots champion and advocate on this issue, but he couldn't be here today because his wife is ill, so please keep his wife in your prayers. I am strongly in favor of the legislation today regarding Gold and Silver. In particular, I am strongly in favor of Representative Davis's Constitutional Money Act. Ever since the COVID-19 scamdemic, our Federal Government has printed and invented worthless fiat currency out of thin air—inflating the cost of everything and decreasing the value of the Dollar. I strongly believe that the Dollar should be backed by something tangible of value like Gold. As we all learned in school, fiat currency only has value because we simply believe it has value. It is backed by nothing but belief and confidence in the Federal Government. But what happens if Government and Society Collapses? Elements like Gold and Silver have inherent value regardless of what we believe about it. Why? Just take a look at the periodic table—it's plain science. Currency has to be a physical, transact-able medium of value that isn't a liquid or a gas, not radioactive, and also must be rare or difficult to come by. That eliminates all of the elements on the periodic table except Gold, Silver, Platinum and Palladium. Many people ask "how can we possibly pay for things in Gold bars? How am I supposed to pay for a cheeseburger or a milkshake with a gold bar?" And the answer is, we don't have to. There are reliable and trustworthy producers that make thin sheets of gold called Gold Backs, each worth their weight in value ($5, $10, $20, $50, $100). It is both practical and rational to return to a Gold Backed or Gold Based currency. I am definitely in favor of currency made literally of gold like gold backs. Gold will always have value, regardless of if Government survives and society descends into anarchy. There will always be a demand for goods and services and gold will always hold value. Missourians deserve the right to have the ability to protect the value of their hard earned assets against runaway inflation in a stable medium like Gold and Silver. As a young person, the future is extremely uncertain to me, and while I'm hopeful for a Golden Age, I'm also concerned that society may eventually fall apart, and I think it's critical to have the value of my hard earned assets stored in something reliable. Thank you.

Hello, this is my testimony regarding: Restoring Sound Money Principles & why I am one of many Missourians who support it. Gold and silver are constitutionally recognized as money (Article I, Section 10). Treating them as such—rather than taxable commodities—aligns with the founders’ intent and counters the fiat dollar’s vulnerabilities. Reducing Dependency on a Devaluing Dollar: State depositories holding gold and silver allow states and residents to diversify away from an inflating Federal Reserve Note, reducing reliance on a currency eroded by federal overspending. Boosting Economic Resilience: By holding precious metals in state depositories, states can create a financial buffer against federal monetary instability, ensuring they have tangible assets to fall back on during economic crises. Attracting Investment: Eliminating capital gains taxes makes a state more appealing to investors and businesses dealing in precious metals, potentially spurring economic growth and job creation. Empowering Citizens: Pro-gold and silver laws give individuals more financial freedom to protect their wealth without federal or state tax burdens, leveling the playing field against inflation driven by unchecked government spending. Promoting Monetary Competition: State depositories and tax-free precious metals challenge the Federal Reserve’s monopoly on money, fostering competition that could pressure the federal government to curb spending, stabilize the dollar and not succumb to their weaponization / control of our state when the Fed Gov is not aligned with our state/citizens beliefs / goals. Legislation allowing property taxes to be paid in silver and gold could serve as a powerful safeguard against the risks of a CBDC (Central Bank Digital Currency) system, especially one wielded as a tool for control. In a CBDC system, governments could freeze accounts or restrict transactions for dissent—like the Canadian truckers saw with bank account freezes during their 2022 protests. If property taxes can be paid in gold or silver, you’d have an alternative payment method outside the digital chokehold, preserving your ability to retain your land. Gold and silver as legal tender for taxes ensure you can still meet obligations without relying on a system that might blacklist you for unpopular opinions or actions. Allowing precious metals for taxes creates a parallel option that’s harder to track or shut down, keeping some financial autonomy in citizens’ hands. If the government dislikes your behavior—say, protesting mandates or policies—they could limit your CBDC access, effectively cutting you off from essentials. Physical gold and silver sidestep this, offering a tangible way to maintain your economic footing. In extreme cases, a CBDC could be programmed to “expire” funds or impose negative interest rates, eroding savings. Precious metals held outside that system, and usable for taxes, protect your wealth from such digital overreach. Gold and silver have been used as money for millennia, often during times when centralized currencies failed or were weaponized. Codifying their use for taxes taps into that resilient legacy, offering a fallback against modern financial tyranny. CBDCs enable total visibility of your spending habits, which could be used to profile and penalize you. Paying taxes in physical metals like Silver & Gold keeps some transactions off the digital grid, bolstering privacy. States enacting this legislation could collectively push back against federal overreach, creating a network of jurisdictions where citizens aren't fully captive to a CBDC rollout—think of it as a financial firewall. If a CBDC is paired with rampant inflation (like we're seeing from overspending), your digital dollars lose value while tax burdens rise. Gold and silver hold steady, ensuring you're not squeezed out of your property by a devalued currency. Beyond property, this sets a precedent for broader use of precious metals in commerce, giving people /states options to opt out of a surveillant, controllable CBDC system. It's a step toward keeping individual Missourians / states freedoms & independence intact. When governments can weaponize money, they can crush dissent. Legislation like this isn't just about economics; it's about retaining control over your life / property & state in a world where digital currencies could become cages. So yes, I support Sound Money in Missouri State. The sooner we enact such legislation the safer each and every one of us will be. Thank you, Sincerely, Mrs Nelson-Frame (A proud Missourian - lets Make Missouri Great Again (MOGA)!

We need honest money for Missourians, not constantly depreciating fiat currency as our only choice.

From the beginning of civilization, the foremost method of controlling a body of people is to control them economically. In the 21st century, the digital age, there are opportunities for despotic regimes like never before. That includes tracking and documenting behaviors, both favored and disfavored by the powers to be.-- The advent of Central Bank Digital Currency introduces a new dynamic to the digital age, that is, a way to punish or reward individuals based on the behavioral information collected on them.-- If Central Bank Digital Currency is introduced and eventually replaces the dollar, every monetary transaction would be tracked and could be approved or denied, based on, perhaps, a social credit score.--We saw this sort of thing take place in Canada during the Covid era, when the government froze bank accounts and credit cards of truckers who has assembled in protest of the Covid government shutdown.-- Matters relating to national currency are powers delegated to the federal government, so there's little states can do to combat the replacement of the paper dollar with a digital currency.-- One thing the states CAN do is facilitate a competing currency. If enough states do so, that will be a great disincentive to a federal decision to eliminates paper currency and replace it with a digital currency.-- Note that Article I, Section 10 of the US Constitution empowers the states to make "gold and silver Coin a Tender in Payment of Debts."

do support this bill due to Missouri needs a back up currency in case the dollar defaults completely. This is entirely possible regardless of what President Trump can do to slow it down. Gold and silver are God's money system and should be able to be used if necessary. Thank you for listening.

The future of Missouri lies in the hands of the hard working individuals. Our method of consumerism should always be based on the legal currency of gold and silver. Please vote in favor of HB630 and HB433.
