24 (5) In the county in which the accused is apprehended.

562.071. 1. It is an affirmative defense that the defendant engaged in the conduct charged to constitute an offense because he or she was coerced to do so, by the use of, or threatened imminent use of, unlawful physical force upon him or her or a third person, which force or threatened force a person of reasonable firmness in his situation would have been unable to resist.

2. The defense of "duress" as defined in subsection 1 is not available:

(1) As to the ~~[crime]~~ offense of murder, except where the victim is an unborn child and the defendant is the child's mother;

(2) As to any offense when the defendant recklessly places himself or herself in a situation in which it is probable that he or she will be subjected to the force or threatened force described in subsection 1 of this section.

563.026. 1. Unless inconsistent with other provisions of this chapter defining justifiable use of physical force, or with some other provision of law, conduct which would otherwise constitute any offense other than a class A felony or murder is justifiable and not criminal when it is necessary as an emergency measure to avoid an imminent public or private injury which is about to occur by reason of a situation occasioned or developed through no fault of the actor, and which is of such gravity that, according to ordinary standards of intelligence and morality, the desirability of avoiding the injury outweighs the desirability of avoiding the injury sought to be prevented by the statute defining the offense charged.

2. The necessity and justifiability of conduct under subsection 1 of this section may not rest upon considerations pertaining only to the morality and advisability of the statute, either in its general application or with respect to its application to a particular class of cases arising thereunder. Whenever evidence relating to the defense of justification under this section is offered, the court shall rule as a matter of law whether the claimed facts and circumstances would, if established, constitute a justification.

3. Conduct which would otherwise constitute an offense is justifiable and not criminal when it is a lawful medical procedure:

(1) Performed by a licensed physician;

(2) Performed on a pregnant female to avert the death of the pregnant female;

(3) That results in the accidental or unintentional death of the unborn child the pregnant female is carrying; and

(4) Performed when all reasonable alternatives to save the life of the unborn child:

(a) Are unavailable; or

(b) Were attempted unsuccessfully before the performance of the medical procedure.

4. The defense of justification under this section is an affirmative defense.
